

Clarence Moriwaki is the president of the Bainbridge Island Japanese American Community and is a founder and past president of the Bainbridge Island Japanese American Exclusion Memorial Association. For nearly 20 years, Clarence has worked to create and develop the Memorial and earn designation as a National Historic Site. For his efforts, in 2008 he was awarded the National Parks Conservation Association's highest national accolade, the Marjorie Stoneman Douglas Award. In March, the Bainbridge Island Chamber of Commerce named him the 2017 Citizen of the Year.

Clarence is the principal of Forest Edge Communications and he has served CEO of the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Washington, campaign manager for the ACLU of Washington, and as a senior aide and spokesperson for President Bill Clinton, Governor Mike Lowry, Congressman Jay Inslee, Lt. Governor John Cherberg, the Washington State Senate, Kitsap County, Sound Transit and the Portland Rose Festival Association.

Clarence was also a news reporter and program producer for three Seattle radio stations, a member of the Tukwila City Council and candidate for the Washington state senate. He has served on the board of directors for numerous state-wide, regional and local organizations and he is the state's first and only 12 year-old Eagle Scout
